

Henry E. Brady is the Class of 1941 Monroe Deutsch Distinguished Professor of Political Science and Public Policy at the University of California, Berkeley. He served as dean of the Goldman School of Public Policy for twelve years from 2009 to 2021 and as head of the UC Berkeley Survey Research Center from 1999 to 2009. Brady received his PhD in Economics and Political Science from MIT in 1980. He has served as President of the American Political Science Association and of the Society for Political Methodology. Brady was a Commission Member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences' Lincoln Project on the Future of American Public Higher Education from 2012-2017 for which he also served as Director of Research. From 2021 he has been Director of Research for California 100, a statewide initiative focused on developing a vision for California's next century that is innovative, sustainable, and equitable. He has written or edited ten books and monographs and over 100 articles and reports.

Brady was elected a Member of the American Academy of Arts & Sciences in 2003 and a Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in 2006. He was awarded a Career Achievement Award from the Society for Political Methodology in 2012. In 2021, he received the Goodnow Award from the American Political Science Association for his career of "service to the community of teachers, researchers, and public servants who work in the many fields of politics." Upon retiring from the deanship in 2021, he received the Berkeley Citation for those whose "contributions to UC Berkeley go beyond the call of duty and whose achievements exceed the standards of excellence in their fields."
